Increased Production

At our Chilliwack Facility, we recently outfitted our Belcor Autoformer to be able to glue can-filled cartons.

Why is that a big deal? – Up until this point, we have only been able to use this piece of equipment to glue client's cartons containing bottles. Projects involving cans required us to hand glue every carton closed.

What that means for our clients? – This new outfitting will allow us to speed up our process and help us better serve our clients. This translates into quicker turn-around times and overall time to get your product to market!

Take advantage of this update in your next project, email us at jaredpenner@bullseyepackaging.ca

Industry News

Saltwater Brewery has developed a six-pack ring that is 100% biodegradable, compostable and edible. These rings are made from barley and wheat remnants leftover from the brewing process. These rings are just as reliable as plastic rings, but they are completely edible for any sea creatures or birds.

So the question is – who will be the first to have us run these in a project?

New to Us

Please join us in welcoming an exciting new client, Phillips Brewery! This household name in the BC craft beer community started out in 2001 and has since grown to also launch a soda company, a distillery, and most recently a malting facility—the only one of its kind in Canada.

While Phillips has their own in-house packaging line, we are thrilled to take on all the items that fall outside of how their in-house system is tailored.

If you would like to learn more about how Bullseye Packaging can either meet your full secondary co-packing needs or augment your current in-house system, call Jared Penner at 604-378-0239
